Training Today's Workforce, Building Tomorrow's Leaders

At Carlow, we believe education is a catalyst to transform lives and uplift communities. Every day, students, faculty, and staff are building pathways to success—workforce development initiatives that create opportunities for individuals and strengthen our region.

Together, we're preparing ethical leaders who are ready to make an impact.

Workforce-Ready Nurses

The United States is facing a critical nursing shortage, and Western Pennsylvania is no exception. Healthcare systems are struggling to meet the growing demand for skilled nurses, particularly in long-term care, rehabilitation, and outpatient settings.

Thanks to generous funding from Allegheny Health Network (AHN) and the Eden Hall Foundation, Carlow University launched its Practical Nursing Certificate Program, a 12-month, full-time program designed to expedite entry into the workforce and bridge critical gaps in patient care. Unlike traditional multi-year nursing programs, LPN programs produce workforce-ready nurses in a fraction of the time, making them a potent solution to the ongoing shortage.
